The journal covers a wide range of basic and practical research through various types of publication (research article, review, case report, technical report etc.). In this year, there is a call for articles on the topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the following: professional development of special education teachers 、 epidemic prevention and special education 、 distance learning 、 technology in special education 、 challenge and impact of CRPD 、 inclusion education 、 identification and education for dual-exceptional students 、 assistive technology 、 Augmentative & Alternative Communication (AAC) 、 employment and care of adults with disabilities 、 double-aging 、 Special Education Pre-K.

Principles for Manuscript Writing:

- Manuscripts should be written according to the order: English title, English abstract (within 500 words), keywords (no more than 5), main text (figures and tables showed within it), and references (English showed after Chinese). The total length of main text is limited to 8,000 words.
- For the writing style, please refer to the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th edition). Manuscripts should be written in Times New Roman font, adopt half-width punctuation, with text aligned in the horizontal direction, and the article continued in the vertical direction, to be printed on A4 sized paper. Margins on all four sides should be 2.5 cm, with the page number placed in the bottom center of the page.
- For empirical paper, manuscripts should include the preface (including literature review), methods, results, discussions, conclusions, and references.
- It is recommended to avoid citing various unverified reports or articles that have not been peer reviewed to ensure the accuracy of knowledge. Where data or opinions provided by other parties were used, the researcher shall respect the intellectual property rights of the said parties, cite their sources, and avoid misleading others with respect to the originality of these data or opinions.
